The Kellco Calcutta

What's a Calcutta you ask?

First of all, tickets are sold – much like a raffle. Each ticket sold gives the purchaser a chance at drawing a horse that is racing in the nominated race. The more tickets purchased, the higher the chance of their ticket being pulled out of the barrel to make them a horse owner.

When the tickets are sold the draw takes place. After this draw, each horse now has a temporary owner. Following the ticket draw, each horse then goes up for auction. Like all auctions, eventually someone has the winning bid. The person with the winning bid becomes the new owner of that horse.

The original owner of each horse receives 50% of the auctioned value. The rest of the proceeds go into the 'winning pool'.

As an owner, you can also bid on your own horse (you may do this because it is favoured to win). If you bid on your own horse and your winning bid is $1,000 – it will only cost you $500 (remember that 50% of the auctioned value goes back to the original owner – which in this instance is yourself).

After all the horses are auctioned off, the 'winning pool' is tallied and funds are divided between the 1st, 2nd and 3rd place getters & always something for that horse that comes last!

Holding a Calcutta is traditional at all "Picnics". It allows you the excitement of becoming a horse owner for the day. Some of the best fun of the day can be by forming a syndicate with your friends and pooling your money as this increases your chances of drawing a horse.

Don't forget to find an appropriate name for your syndicate eg. 'Gallopers'. Even if you don't draw a horse you can still buy one at the auction!

1. To be held on the main race
2. Tickets $5 each from the Calcutta Marquee or the roving Calcutta Sellers from 12noon.
3. Draw & Auction will be held on main stage.

Good Luck!
